IN WOMAN'S REALM.

OUR FASHION COMMISSIONER HAS MANY NEW AND USEFUL IDEAS.

STIFFNESS HAS GONE FROM SKIRTS.

Something About Capes and Cloaks—Unequal Ribbed Poplins Will Be Favorites—A Pretty Dress Pattern—Demi-Saison Toilette.

(For the Dispatch.)
NEW YORK, September 3.—All stiffness has disappeared from the skirts of costumes. There are folds in plenty where the skirts and shaped flounces begin to widen, but they fall softly. Even the lapels of jackets are not so very firm as their outlines. Collars, however, are still rigid. As for capes, they have followed suit, and we shall see them hanging in soft folds from the shoulders finished by the shaped frills that are all the rage. All materials that will not fall in folds are now rejected by first-class dress-makers.

THE NEW DRAP CUIR.
The new drap cuir to be used for capes and cloaks are thinner than usual, in order to drape and hang softly. All the new materials partake of this quality. Those that promise to be most in favor are all sorts of cloths, faced and unfaced, cashmere, reps, and twills, soft makes of moles and satins, corded silks and fancy corded materials. Then there are, besides these, self-colored figured woollens, with simple patterns, lozenges, spot, and arabesques.

When different colors are combined in the fancy tissues they are so woven together that the effect is that of a mixed fabric. Rubbings and narrow stripes are among the new goods, and run either way of the material. In the wide widths the direction given to the woven pattern often does not matter, as they are made to suit them up any way which happens to suit their taste.

UNEQUAL RIBBED POPLINS.
The unequal ribbed poplins bid fair to be favorites for elegant dress. The manner in which they are treated is decidedly pleasing, many being shot or watered, and sometimes both. Among Irish poplins shown was one of a most peculiar weave. The design was of alternate black and white half-inch squares. At the top of every fifth square a salmon-colored silk braid of the same width appeared to protrude through the material and hung in a fringed end rather more than an inch in length. The braid was caught at the back in the weave of the stuff.

Moire poplins have, some of them, a small brocade figure almost covering the surface; others are spotted. The designs are not floral, but in rings, etc.

A PRETTY DRESS PATTERN.
A new species of dress pattern has made its appearance. The pattern destined for the skirt—which is without seams—consists of a large circle or square, in which the center will be cut away and the placket-hole slit, leaving no fulcrum at the waist, but much at the feet. The prettiest one I saw was of blue silk poplin, and the goods for the skirt was shaded, the back portion being blue, and gradually becoming lighter till the upper portion of the front attained a bluish-white hue, the lower part still remaining blue. Woven in the material were black silk cords, twisted with gold, and ascending from the foot in a sort of wavy ray design, reaching in the back half way up the skirt, and being much lower in front. These rays encircled the entire skirt at intervals of about an inch. This idea will be carried out in endless variations of coloring and foot designs. The effect produced by the shading is beautiful. The body will be shaded in the same manner, the lighter part being reserved for the upper portion of the sleeves and body, and darkening as it reaches the waist and wrists.

A DEMI-SAISON TOILETTE.
Here is the description of a demi-saison toilette, made in the advance styles always used for these warm gowns, made to wear on cool days in the latter part of summer and through the autumn. The material of this gown is a blue cloth, of very light weight. The bodice has a tucked and rounded grille, both back and front, of orange silk. This is one of the most recent, and consequently one of the smartest combinations of color. The remainder of the bodice is tight fitting, back and front, and tucked in front to just below the bust line, the sleeves long and tight fitting, and coming in a point to the knuckles, bearing at the shoulder three deep-appliqued tucks of orange silk. The skirt also rejoiced in three of these appliqué tucks of taffeta. A half-long cape of the cloth with high-flaring collar and rounded fronts, and the entire edge having a shaped flounce, made this a very smart toilette. Of course, the cape was lined with the orange taffeta.

NOVELTIES IN DRESS ACCESSORIES.
A new idea in handkerchiefs is to put them in series of seven, one for each day in the week; the name of each is embroidered in white on differently colored cambric for each day.
Bright colored silks are used to embellish small flowers, such as violets, and daisies on white cambric handkerchiefs.
The new trimmings show conclusively that plain goods will be the vogue of the future for some time to come. The prominent feature of these is, that they will afford the necessary color to the sober hues of the plain materials on which they are to be applied.

Bassementiers have airy open designs, chenille effects, and brilliant colorings in spangles, beads and tinsel. In garnitures the fronts in black net are much in evidence. Black satin comes ribbon, or narrow black velvet.

It is more than a rumor that we are to wear elbow sleeves in the near future, since Doucet is making walking costumes in velvelling and other light woollens with sleeves only to the bend of the arm. They are absolutely tight and close-fitting to the shoulder, as well as to the upper arm, and are finished off with plain rows of trimming. This necessitates long gloves.

GILT AND SILVER WIRE.
Gilt and silver spiral wire and aluminum spangles are liberally used. Flowers in silk embroidery are raised by padding and covered with gold netting. Violet, light green and turquoise colors are prominent. Revers will evidently be unqualified favorites, for trimmings designed to cover them are many and beautiful.

In pearl passementerie a cream-color prevails. Festoons of pearls are shown and pointed yokes of crystal and pearl. Epauletttes to match many of the fronts are made; these are worked with colored spangles and chenille imitations. In black soutache passementerie there are charming Astrakhan effects, though all are light in effect.

Many narrow, jeweled edgings are shown, and also many in chenille alone.

BLACK CRAVATS THE RAGE.
White cravats are beginning to weary us, and black ones offer a welcome change, to be worn as long as light-colored materials are admissible. When dark winter suits are necessary, then gray-colored ones will probably take their place. But for the near future we are to have black. One style consists of a wide scarf of black satin tied in a big bow under the chin, the ends turned underneath sailor fashion, after passing through or large flattened ring. A watered ribbon cravat is perhaps prettier than the above. It may be had in all colors, but the black moire, tinted with a narrow mellow tinted lace point on the edge seems to be the favorite. These black cravats include those made of black mousseline de soie, edged with ruchings, black satin comet ribbon, or narrow black velvet.

It is more than a rumor that we are to wear elbow sleeves in the near future, since Doucet is making walking costumes in velvelling and other light woollens with sleeves only to the bend of the arm. They are absolutely tight and close-fitting to the shoulder, as well as to the upper arm, and are finished off with plain rows of trimming. This necessitates long gloves.

A Southern Cavalryman.
(New York Press-Republican.)

If there are any politicians in this country, high or low, North or South, Republican or Democratic, who are trying to head off military celebrities on their road to the highest of political distinctions they should keep their eyes on General Joe Wheeler. It is rarely that such a really charming character is introduced, or rather is emphasized—for General Wheeler was long ago introduced on the stage of public affairs. The South prizes him, and the North must prize him. The South has a perfect simplicity of character, associated, so far as military matters are concerned, with a penetrative shrewdness as well as a high and intellectual order of courage. He is saturated with good humor, having an approving word for everybody whose achievements he is asked to estimate. Yet every certificate of character he gives is of value to every one who receives it, from his Commander-in-Chief down through the list of dashing young colonels in his division to the much berated native auxiliaries. Everybody thinks better of General Shafter, Colonel Roosevelt, and General Wheeler's legions because General Wheeler speaks well of them, and yet General Wheeler speaks ill of no one. He is ready even to believe and to voice the belief that Secretary Alger's eleven hour concession of the possibility of miseries in the camps has "cheered them (the sick soldiers) up" so that he can hardly "convey the change—for the better."

A keen, kindly, courageous old soldier in velling and other light woollens with sleeves only to the bend of the arm. They are absolutely tight and close-fitting to the shoulder, as well as to the upper arm, and are finished off with plain rows of trimming. This necessitates long gloves.

Her Best.
(Clara W. Bronson, in the Watchman.)

Have you noticed the change it sometimes makes
In a woman's face—
Passive it may be and dull and cold,
Neutral-tinted, and commonplace—
When the sun falls on it? How swift it takes Meaning and color and soft outlines;
How strange new lights from the eyes
Will shine,
And new tints blossom on cheek and lip?
The whole face softens and warms and shines.
And the hair, a miser grown overboard,
Shows forth of a sudden, undreamed-of gold.
O, there's many a woman, east and west,
Must be in a sunshine to look her best!
Have you ever noticed the change it makes
In a woman's face
And her heart, and her life, that were cold and dull
And slightly inclined to commonplace,
When Love shines on them? How there breaks
Over her nature a wave of gold,
Bringing out beauty unknown before,
Mellowing, widening, more and more,
Lifting her up till her eyes behold
Ever new blooms for her hands to cull,
So she has her life grow beautiful?
O, there's never a woman, east or west,
But must live in Love's sunshine to live her best.

AUGUSTA'S CAPITAL.

THE CITY OF STAUNTON NOW FILLED WITH VISITORS.

A NEW WEEKLY PAPER.

It Will Republican in Politics—A Coming Marriage—Soldiers Returning Home—Several Large Farms Sold at Good Prices—Personals.

STAUNTON, VA., September 3.—(Special.)—Staunton is now filling up quite rapidly with visitors from the mountain resorts, who find the "Queen City of the Valley," a delightful stopping-off place for several weeks before returning to their homes.

It is reported here that a new weekly paper will soon be started in Staunton, using the last weekly plant, which is now the property of Rev. A. P. Funkhouser, the postmaster at Harrisonburg. It will be Republican in politics, and the surmise is that it will be the organ of the Allan faction here.

A COMING MARRIAGE.
The coming wedding of Miss Ida Hamilton Smith, an attractive young lady of this city, and Mr. T. Addison Bell is announced. The ceremony will be performed in the Methodist church, Wednesday morning.

The Virginia Court of Appeals begins its session in Staunton next Tuesday, the 6th. The stated date is September 10th, but as that date falls on Saturday, which is not a court-day, and to economize time, it is sitting will begin the third day of the week. There are some twenty-six cases on the docket.

Reports from the recent Sunday-School Union of the county schools shows that 129 delegates were in attendance, representing seventy-four Sunday schools, 519 officers and teachers, and 6,129 scholars. The sum of $2,563.28 was contributed during the year for all purposes.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS.
Through the efforts of Hon. Jake Yost, a number of the boys of Company K, Second Virginia Regiment, have secured their discharge. Among these are Rudolph Bumgardner, son of Captain James Bumgardner, who had been commissioned a lieutenant by President McKinley, and who has been ill with fever. He is now at home. Others who have received discharges are Eugene Summerson, D. H. Smith, T. A. Carroll, Lacey Bailey, and a few Staunton boys in the Third and Fourth regiments.

Staunton people, whose sympathies have been aroused through private letters from members of Company K, announcing the outbreak of sickness in the company, are subscribing liberally to a fund for their relief.

THE MOUNTAIN STREAMS.
The mountain streams in the western part of Augusta county are proving very attractive just now, and frequent fishing and camping parties are on the move in that direction.

Farming lands are still changing hands in the county. C. H. Harriman has purchased of Mrs. M. G. Harman her farm of 99 acres on the Valley pike, north of Staunton, for $11,000. M. S. Hiner has bought a portion of the A. H. Crawford farm, at Parnassus, for $8,000.

The Mary Baldwin Seminary opens Thursday morning under the most encouraging auspices for its fifty-sixth annual session. Last year's session, under the management of Miss Ella C. Welmer, who succeeded Miss Baldwin as principal, was one of the most prosperous in the long history of the institution.

Other farming property recently sold was that of H. W. Roller, which at public sale brought $3 per acre, and that of Mrs. E. C. Roller, which brought $2.50 per acre.

DR. RALPH CLEMENTS.
Dr. W. R. Clements, a native of Richmond, and graduate of the Virginia Medical College, at Richmond, has formed a partnership with Dr. E. P. Reese, of this city. Last winter Dr. Clements took a post-graduate course at the New York Hospital.

The public schools and the kindergarten school will reopen September 15th. Two Richmond lawyers—Hill Carter and B. Rand Wellford, paid Staunton a visit this week.

H. C. Tinsley, the veteran and beloved editor of the old Vindicator, has returned from Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he went for treatment.

The Misses Blaine, who have been visiting the family of Judge George M. Harrison, have returned to Louisville.

Dr. E. M. Atkinson is taking a rest at Virginia Beach.

Mrs. General J. E. B. Stuart went to Norfolk this week.

Judge Lyman Chalkley, having adjourned County Court, has rejoined his family, in Kentucky.

Miss Ruth Robins, of Richmond, who has been the guest of Miss Olivia Trout, has returned to her home.

Miss Beattie N. Burnett has entered the Virginia Hospital, at Richmond, to prepare herself to become a trained nurse.

Mrs. Crosby and children, who have been visiting County-Clerk William A. Burnett, have returned to Richmond.

Mrs. Rosa G. Albert and daughter,

Miss Verna, of Richmond, who have been visiting friends in the city, have gone to the county.

Mrs. R. Kennon Clark, who has been spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. A. M. Fauntleroy, has returned to Staunton. She was accompanied by Mrs. Carter Harrison and Miss Fannie Harrison.

Mr. Frank B. Yates, principal of the Deaf, Dumb, and Blind Institute, of Arkansas, after spending the summer with his parents, in the county, has returned to his duties at Little Rock.

Mrs. William G. Ferguson, of Richmond, is visiting Mrs. R. C. Catlett. Miss Matocca Gay, of Washington, is the guest of Mrs. R. H. Catlett.

Misses Camilla, Alice, and Annie Tatum, of Richmond, are visiting Misses Lizzie and Eva McCue.

Mrs. Doyle, wife of Captain Thomas S. Doyle, has gone to Talladega, Ala., where she has accepted the position of matron in the Alabama Institute for the Deaf.

Mrs. Harrell, of New York, is the guest of her friend, Mrs. Charles A. Holt. Her husband is a surgeon in the army, at Manila.

GAYETY AT IVY DEPOT.
An Amateur Play, in Which All Acquainted Themselves Well.
(Correspondence of the Dispatch.)
IVY DEPOT, VA., September 3.—Always gay and festive, our neighborhood has been especially attractive to summer visitors this season, and all who witnessed the amusing farce "My Lord and Lady" at Ivy Hill Wednesday evening, felt that such a treat was well worth the small admittance fee. The affair was for the benefit of the Episcopal church. This charming entertainment was the social feature of the week, and every one who could possibly do so attended.

The affair was directed by Mr. S. W. Caldwell and Mr. Macbeth, and it is needless to say that under such management anything but brilliant success was impossible.

THE ROLES WELL SUSTAINED.
Each role in the cast of the play was so admirably filled it would be difficult to draw any distinction between them.
Mrs. John Higginson, as Sybil Amblerley, was as pretty and winning as one could wish a heroine to be. She, with Miss Peyton and Miss Mallet, as the two friends, Laura and Rosa, formed a trio of captivating femininity.

Mr. H. M. Tuffnell, as "Lord Thirmore," was handsome, elegant, and audacious, while Mr. Caldwell acted the part of Hopkins (the footman), with his usual histrionic skill.

Mr. H. B. Boone, as Spiggatt (the old butler), was as delightfully pompous and consequential as an English servant alone knows how to be.

THE SCENE.
The scene was a sitting-room in a country house. The actors served a most pleasant and delicious refreshment, with all the accessories of such a home picture complete.
The play is amusing and full of sparkle that interests one from the rise of the curtain to its fall.

PERSONALS.
The various teas, at homes, tennis tournaments, and dances given in the past few weeks have been too numerous to mention. The season is at its height.

Mrs. Hamner and family, of Lynchburg, are visiting Mrs. Jack White.

Miss Kate Toubrey, of Baltimore, is visiting the Misses Wood.

Mrs. James Gentry and children are at Mr. Charles Wood's.

Miss Maad Woods, of Charlottesville, has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Warner Woods, at Farmington.

VERY BUSY FARMERS.

NORTHERN NECK AGRICULTURISTS NOW HAVE THEIR HANDS FULL.

POLITICS IS BECOMING ACTIVE.

Congressman Jones Has a Strong Following, and the People Are Enthusiastic in His Behalf—Religious and Social Matters.

COMORN, KING GEORGE COUNTY, VA., September 3.—(Special.)—The farmers' much-needed and highly-enjoyed summer holidays, which began about the 1st of August, have just closed, and another very busy and important season has arrived—a season of rush and hurry, of hard work from day-dawn till late in the night. It will last from now till Christmas-Eve, for there is fodder to gather, haul, and stack, fall hay to harvest and house, many broad fields of corn to be cut off, and fall ploughing and seed-sowing to be pushed right along for several months to come. But right now, in the start, the farmer is confronted by one perplexing obstacle—viz.: Protracted meetings are still in progress at some of the churches, both white and colored, and a major part of the labor now needed on the farms is in daily attendance upon these meetings. Until the revivals "strapped" for laborers, and the few men willing to work will be in great demand and can almost dictate the wages to be paid them.

THE POLITICAL POT BOILING.
The political pot is beginning to boil loudly and strongly throughout the Northern Neck, and leading politicians are on the warpath to carry off the campaign of 1898 is shrouded and passed to history. If such a thing is possible, the Democrats of the four lower counties of the Neck are even more enthusiastic than ever before over the candidacy of Congressman W. A. Jones, and this, supplemented by the encouraging accounts of the enthusiasm on the south side of the Rappahannock in his favor, makes it almost certain, even this early in the fall, that Mr. Jones's election this fall will be the largest ever given him.

The excursion from the lower part of the Neck to Old Point and Norfolk yesterday and to-day has long been looked forward to by the old veterans as an event in their lives. Their plan is to "take in" the magnificent fort at Old Point, visit the wounded soldiers encamped near by, and then "inspect" the battlefields at Newport News. They expect also to visit Ocean View, Virginia Beach, etc., and then return to their comfortable homes and other ailments contracted "on the field" thirty-odd years ago.

HOG CHOLERA IN NORTHERN-NECK.

A gentleman from one of the lower counties reports that hog cholera is prevailing in some parts of Northumberland, and that a number of swine have already died of it.

Many Northern "Neckers" are making ready to attend the Agricultural Fair at Tappahannock next Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

Hog and next fishing on the Rappahannock has been better the past three weeks than for years. Fine trout have been caught in large quantities lower down the river.

The lady of St. John's Episcopal church, of this county, realized $5 from their tournament and entertainment at the Courthouse, some evenings ago.

Miss Ellen Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Griffin, near Mathias Point, this county, died several days ago of typhoid fever. She was about 21 years old, and an amiable, highly esteemed, young lady. Her death was a great shock to the community.

Messrs. W. Ray and R. Hunter Greenlaw, of Washington, D. C., are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mason Greenlaw, of Murtleville, Stafford county.

Mr. Horace A. Fitzhugh, an attaché of the Erie railroad, New York City, is spending his vacation with his parents in this county.

Miss Vivian Meade, Mrs. Furgerson, and Mrs. Dr. Stuart, of Clarke, are guests of relatives in the lower part of this county.

The Sum Prentiss, of Suffolk, is spending some time at "Lauderdale," the home of Mr. Isaac F. Hoos, in this county.

Miss Anne Bevan, who has been spending some weeks here with her brother, Commonwealth's Attorney Thomas H. Bevan, has returned to her home, at Arlington, Md.

Mr. L. A. Edwards, of Westmoreland, has completed his cannery at Nomini, and it is almost ready to begin operations. It is said that the crop of tomatoes in that section is a heavy one.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

Rev. T. J. Wray, the able and popular pastor in charge of the Methodist churches here, closed last week a series of revival services at Grace church, and all accounts indicate that his preaching was very powerful, and aroused much religious feeling in that vicinity. Mr. Wray is this week engaged in a very interesting revival at Trinity church, at King George Court-house, and is being assisted by his brother, Rev. George W. Wray, of Petersburg.

Rev. J. R. Thomas, of Charles county, Md., is assisting Rev. W. W. Owens in a protracted meeting at Mountain-View Baptist church, in the upper part of this county.

Rev. W. L. Richardson, of Richmond College, has this month conducted meetings at Shiloh and Round-Hill churches, and is this week preaching at Oakland, near Mathias Point, this county.

DR. JETT'S RETURN.
Dr. William N. Jett, the oldest physician in this section, who moved from his home here to Westmoreland, to reside a year or two ago, has returned to Port Conway, this county, where he practiced his profession for many years. All the people of that section are delighted at the Doctor's return, and will bestow upon him a liberal patronage, as of yore.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Billingsley, of Frederickburg, are visiting kinfolk here.

It is reported from Stafford that Mr. R. L. Flatford, one of the most prominent business-men of that county, is ill with fever.

The entertainment given at King George Courthouse Tuesday night, for the benefit of Lamb's-Creek mission, was a most enjoyable affair and a complete success. About $28 was realized.

Has Not Slept for Five Years.
It is reported that a man in Indiana has not had an hour's sleep for five years. He constantly walks about, unable to rest, and is now little more than a skeleton. There are thousands of men and women who are unable to sleep more than an hour or two a night, because of nervousness, weakness, dyspepsia, headache, and constipation. A certain remedy for these disorders is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. All druggists sell it.

Pennyroyal Pills.
Pennyroyal Pills are a certain remedy for these disorders. All druggists sell it.

International Fashion Sensation!

Here is the greatest fall novelty. An American dress with the stars and stripes and an English costume made of the Union-Jack design. The first is a red, white, and blue costume for early autumn, gown of fine dark blue wool, trimmed with red braid with white stars. The last is of the new shape called "Sampson," which promises to be one of the favorites of the coming season.

Aded serge gown trimmed with broad bands of white serge, black satin cravat, and white chemise of guipure over red.

It is intended for American girls visiting England or our fair English cousins when they cross the big pond. The idea has proved the hit of the season and is expected to develop world-wide comment and promote the cordial entente between the two nations.

Mrs. Rosa G. Albert and daughter,

Mrs. Crosby and children, who have been visiting County-Clerk William A. Burnett, have returned to Richmond.
